Wardens prepare to enforce new ATV rules

A.P/CITIZEN STAFF Local game wardens are gearing up to enforce a recently-enacted law governing the use of ATVs. The wardens will also be encouraging riders to join, or form, clubs.

The law, LD 1912, was passed by the Legislature and signed by the governor earlier this month. It is designed to put all-terrain vehicle users on the same trail to public acceptance that snowmobilers blazed a generation, ago.

The Legislature enacted the bill to curb those who disrespect private property and damage environmentally sensitive areas. The bill was initiated in response to complaints from landown-

"What we got passed this year were the things the landowners needed and wanted. They needed some protection and they needed some help in managing the problem user, and we've got a lot of that done," said Dan Mitchell, head of ATV Maine, which has nearly

Gangster rap

Nate Wight is a "gangster"?

Pat Moore, Mike Munzo and Heath McDonald are "gangsters"?

The children at Telstar — all of them — are "idiots," "morons"?

One can only imagine what the town manager really thinks of the rest of us.

For the record: The Citizen played no role in the making of the tape on which this week's story is based. We learned of the tape's existence only after the fact and initially had no interest in listening to it. But when the town manager's comments were described to us, we decided we would be remiss not to listen for ourselves, and for our readers.

What we heard is what you have read — The comments of a public official, speaking in an office paid for by, among others, the parents and grandparents of those "idiots" down the road; and drawing a very nice salary paid by, among others, the parents and grandparents of those "morons" down the

It might be time now for the present town manager to be down the road.

In conjunction with this year's Summer Solstice Festival (June 20), I wish to invite all my fellow artisans who make all or some of your livelihood from your art, craft, or handmade specialty to open your shops and studios to the public on Saturday, June 19.

Demonstrate your craft, offer tours of your studio and meet the public.

A special day announcing your studio is open to the public can be very rewarding and affords the public an opportunity to view your craft in the design and production stages.

For more information on participating and making this a successful "Open Studio Saturday," please drop by or give me a call at 824-6545. Remember — your work, your art, can only be appreciated if it is seen.

THEME OF ART SHOW IS RIVER FERRIES

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Bethel Historical Society, I would like to thank everyone who has donated items to the annual St. Never's Day sale. We have more "treasures" than ever this year, but if anyone wants to donate something more (no clothing please) in good condition, please leave it at the rear door of the O'Neil Robinson House. Since the portion of the Robinson House where previous sales have taken place has been removed, the sale this year will be held on my lawn (weather permitting) or on the side porch and barn if inclement. I am located at 18 Broad Street (across from the Bethel Inn driveway) at the corner of Mason and Broad streets. The sale will be this Saturday, May 29, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Also, the Faye Taylor Memorial Art Show featuring the work of SAD44 elementary art students will be held at the Dr. Moses Mason House Exhibit Hall, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. For the past few years, it was at two of the galleries in the O'Neil Robinson House, but this time it will return to the space where the show began in 1980. This year's theme is "River Ferries on the Androscoggin." Prizes will be given in three divisions to the students, who in the judges' opinion most completely relate to this year's theme. To be considered, all work must be at the Dr. Moses Mason House by Friday, May 28, at 3 p.m.

proposed increase the means the district "would lose basic things," Murphy said.

The board has already cut several staff positions and an existing alternative education program from the budget, he said, and has postponed capital improvement projects and bus purchases.

Other items totaling $158,000 were added to the budget. They are intended to address requirements from the new federal No Child Left Behind Act, as well as existing state requirements, which stipulate districts take measures to improve student performance on testing.

If the district doesn't conform to the requirements, Murphy and federal funding.

"So much has changed with the No Child Left Behind Act," he said. "If we don't meet the requirements of the mandated programs, we won't be reimbursed to (the expected) level because we're not playing by the rules," he said.

That could mean trouble in a few years, he said, because high school diplomas will be awarded based on the mandated performance levels.

"Please don't deal with this budget in isolation," said Murphy. He said pressure should be put on the state to fund schools at the 55 percent level required by law. Funding has fallen far below that level for years, he said.

Woodstock resident Arla

Patch spoke in support of the budget. "It sounds like if we don't participate at this level (of proposed local funding) we'll get into much bigger problems in years to come,' she said.

Bies said that although he does not support the local increase, he does favor increasing school funding at the state level.

Other municipal officials in attendance did not comment on the budget. But many stayed for a time after the hearing to ask questions individually.

Junk car program a success

GREENWOOD — A program to help property owners get rid of junk cars had netted 45 cars by late last week, according to selectman Ivan Roberts. During May and June, property owners can call Gaudreau's Repair in Bethel and have the cars removed for free. The service used to come with a charge, but a recent increase in the price paid for scrap metal made it feasible to do it for free, Roberts said. The only problem with the removal process so far has been that many of the junkers had a lot of trash in them, he said.

Voters OK Planning Board

GILEAD - About two dozen residents voted at a special Town Meeting Saturday to establish a Planning Board, A similar board had been abolished 10 years ago because of disagreements among its members, according to town officials. Since then, selectmen have handled development applications. But with a recent increase in development, some officials felt it would be advisable to create a new board. The proposal passed easily Saturday, according to Beverly Corriveau, Gilead's administrative assistant. Six people have submitted their names so far for consideration for appointment to the board, which will have five members and two alternates. Corriveau said other names may be submitted until the next selectmen's meeting on June 9.

MLT gets grant for Frenchman's

BETHEL - The Mahoosuc Land Trust recently received a $5,000 grant from the Davis Conservation Foundation of Falmouth toward its $42,000 fundraising campaign for the acquisition of the 385-acre Frenchman's Hole property in Riley Township. The Frenchman's Hole property will be added to the Bureau of Public Lands Mahoosuc Unit, which is available to the public for multiple uses. The Frenchman's Hole acquisition will help protect public access to a series of pools on the Bull Branch and simultaneously protect the Sunday River Watershed from additional impacts, according to Marcel Polak of MLT. The forested land will provide an additional buffer to the Mahoosuc Unit, through which the Appalachian Trail runs. The trust still has to raise an additional $8,000 to complete the fundraising. "Donations of all sizes are important and encouraged," said Polak. "When this project is completed, the trust will focus its attention on other lands in the Bethel area with significant ecological, recreational, and scenic values."

Swim lesson information

BETHEL — The Town of Bethel swim program will begin Tuesday, June 22, and end Friday, July 9. Any child 5 years old or entering kindergarten in the fall is eligible for levels I through VII. Children age 4 and under are eligible for the Infant/Toddler Program, which must be taken with an adult. Registration forms are available at the Town Office. Students will be placed according to ability and age level. The schedule will be published in the June 17 issue of The Citizen. For more information, call 824-3152, ext. 301.

New grocery store planned

PARIS — A Save-A-Lot grocery store is expected to open within the next two months in the former Bob's Discount building at the Cornwall Shopping Plaza on Main Street. Store owner John Hammontree also owns a similar store in Portland. He has signed a 10-year lease for the Paris space, and plans to renovate the inside. He will have independent ownership with the national store chain. Hammontree obtained a $100,000 startup loan through Western Maine Financing of EnterpriseMaine.

Unemployment down

AUGUSTA— Maine's unemployment rate dropped by 0.6 percentage point in April to 4.3 percent, the Baldacci administration said Friday. State Labor Commissioner Laura Fortman said the jobless figure dropped from 4.9 percent in March as a result of an increase in the number of self-employed, as well as slight employment gains in professional and business services and manufacturing. The unemployment figures take into account seasonal fluctuations in the labor market. Maine's April unemployment rate was 1.3 percentage point lower than the comparable national rate for the month, 5.6 percent. "It is encouraging to see the unemployment rate fall to 4.3 percent in April," said Fortman. "However, it will take more than one month's data to indicate a significant trend in labor market conditions." Other New England states reporting their seasonally adjusted unemployment rates for April include Vermont, 3.6 percent; New Hampshire, 3.9 percent: Connecticut, 4.5 percent, and Massachusetts, 4.8 percent.

Watch for giant snails

AUGUSTA — The public is being asked to assist the Dept. of Agriculture, Food and Rural Resources in the hunt for giant African land snails (GALS) after recent seizures of the pest in Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa and Ohio pet stores, exotic animal dealers and schools. The snails are a threat to human health and a potentially serious plant pest.
"We want to determine whether these snails are already in Maine and if so, collect them as quickly as possible," Commissioner Robert Spear said. "The discoveries in other states are of concern because the snails were being used at schools as part of science projects. Many of the schools received the snails as donations and were unaware of the potential threat." Another mode of entry of the snail into the state is exotic pet stores. Schools, education programs, pet shops or members of the public that might have these snails are asked to contact the Division of Plant Industry (287-3891) or the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (945-0479). Though there are currently no known GALS in Maine, the potential for damage from this pest is high. Scientists consider the GALS to be one of the most damaging snails in the world because it is known to consume at least 500 different types of plants, including most varieties of beans, peas, cucumbers, and melons. There are also public health concerns, because the snails are known to carry a parasite that can cause serious diseases in humans, including a rare type of meningitis. The diseases can be transferred to humans by eating raw, undercooked infected snail meat or vegetables contaminated by the snails. Humans can also be infected by handling live GALS if the snails' secretions contact mucous membranes in the eyes, nose or mouth. For questions concerning the health risks, the public can call the Bureau of Health (800-821-5821). The GALS are among the largest land snails in the world, growing up to 8 inches in length and 4.5 inches in diameter.

doubled in size in a year to nearly 10,000 members.

Organized ATV users worked with environmentalists, law enforcement officials, landowners and state officials to develop the rules.

The bill prohibits riding on private property without landowner permission, unless it is on a trail marked for ATV use. Written permission is needed to drive on farmlands and orchards. Fines for violating that and several other new regulations will range from $100 to ATVs are barred outright from environmentally sensitive places like salt marshes and sand dunes, and from cemeteries. Also off-limits are rivers, brooks and streams when the ground is not frozen.

ATVs must meet noise standards, and may not be equipped with snorkel kits that enable them to be used in deep water.

In addition, riders ages 9 through 15 will have to complete approved training courses — with a parent or guardian present — if they intend to operate an ATV off their properties.

Those who lose state IFWissued licenses for ATV violations can get them back only after completing approved outdoors ethics of ATVs anywhere during mud season, except on trails marked as passable, as a way to prevent cutting ruts and gouges in land.

Another major thrust of the law is to encourage the growth of ATV clubs through a panel that will award grants for trail construction and maintenance. Money will also be earmarked for intensified enforcement in areas where ATVers continue to run wild.

The money will come from the new and increased fines. Before the latest laws were passed, Maine law required ATV operators as well as riders who are under 18 to wear safety helmets. A positive approach In the Bethel area, game warden Steve Allarie said encouraging riders to join and/or form clubs will be a key part of his and other warden's efforts.

"We will go out of our way to help form clubs," he said. Allarie said while wardens have already familiarized themselves with the new law, they will receive formal training on it as well. After that, he said, wardens will work with state and local police in enforcing the regulations and encouraging responsible use of the

Grants Voters will also be asked to authorize the town to accept three grants.

The first is a Community Development Block Grant for $65,000 that will be put toward the estimated $117,000 cost of rebuilding the Alder River dam.

This grant is not yet a sure thing, Whitman said, but the town has passed Phase I of the approval process and appears on track to successfully complete Phase II.

"It looks good for getting the grant," said Town Manager Carol Whitman, "but you never know until the end."

The second grant, from the Federal Emergency Management Agency, is for approximately $59,000.

The money would be used to upgrade and update the Fire Department's CASCADE breathing system, which is Greenwood's contribution in specialized equipment to the local mutual aid program.

To qualify for the grant, which has also not yet been approved, voters must agree to appropriate a 10-percent town match of $5,914.

The third grant, from the State Planning Office, is for $6,000, and requires a $2,000 local match.

At their annual Town Meeting, in March, voters agreed to raise $3,000 for implementing the town's Comprehensive Plan. The vote on June 14 will authorize spending the local-match amount.

Another article calls for raising the town mileage payment to 35 cents per mile. The rate is currently 30 cents per mile.

Land offered

Voters will also decide if they wish to purchase an 84acre parcel of land, located across the Greenwood Road from South Pond.

Long-time resident Maggie Ring has offered the land to the town at the very low price of $200 an acre.

Ring said she hoped the town would preserve the land in its present state but develop parking and trails to make it more accessible for various forms of non-motorized recreation.

At $200 an acre, the full purchase price of the parcel would be $16,800, but the town has already been promised more than half that — $10,700 in private contributions toward the purchase.

If voters approve the article, Whitman said, the balance of the purchase price would be taken from surplus.

The June 14 meeting will be held at 6 p.m. in the Town Office meeting room.

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published by special arrangement with the Advertising Department

Another Memorial Day is upon us. The official kick-off to the summer season even though summer doesn't actually begin until June 21St. Still. Memorial Day marks the beginning of camping, cookouts, beach trips, getting the garden in and a lot of other outdoor events. It also seems to be an opportunity for an extended weekend, Blowout Sales events, Lawn and Garden Center sales and a few other big commercial promotions. I think, as a society, we have forgotten what Memorial Day represents and this year is a good time to be reminded that there is more to it than hot dogs and hamburgers on the grill.

We have lost nearly 800 of our military men and women in Iraq and a sizeable number in Afghanistan, so this may be a good time to revisit the origins of Memorial Day.

The history books tell us that Memorial Day was officially proclaimed on May 5, 1868 by General John Logan, national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, in his General Order No. 11 and was first observed on May 30, 1868, when flowers were placed on the graves of Union and Confederate soldiers at Arlington National Cemetery. However, where it all began is a matter of much dispute.

There are 24 communities in the United States that lay claim to being the birthplace of Memorial Day. In May of 1966, President Lyndon Johnson, on behalf of the United States Government sanctioned Waterloo, New York as the "official" birthplace of Memorial Day because that town's earliest observance in 1866 was considered to be so well planned and complete.

Some people from the other 23 communities still dispute that Waterloo merited the designation. The story I like best takes place two years before in 1864 in Boalsburg, Pennsylvania. Legend has it that on a warm summer day a young lady by the name of Emma Hunter, along with her friend, Sophie Keller, gathered some flowers and visited the cemetery where Emma's father was recently laid to rest. Dr. Reuben Hunter was a surgeon in the Union Army had died a short while before and the grieving Emma wanted to pay her respects.

There are 24 communities in the United States that lay claim to being the birthplace of Memorial Day.

While at the cemetery,

Emma and Sophie encountered Mrs. Elizabeth Meyer. who was there to place flowers on the grave of her son Amos, who as a private in the ranks, had fallen on the last day of the Battle of Gettysburg. The young girls and the older woman shared the stories of how their loved one came to rest where they were. One, an officer and a surgeon, the other an enlisted man, leaving the family farm to do his duty.

The ladies decided that they would meet a year from that date and honor the memory of their family members. As the year wore on they shared their story with other townspeople who shared it with yet other townspeople. On the appointed day a year later as the women went to the cemetery, they found the entire town of Boalsburg had shown up and flowers were strewn on every single grave.

I don't think it really matters where the tradition of placing flowers on the graves began and I don't think it matters that what was once called Decoration Day is now called Memorial Day. I think what matters is the fact that we have lost touch with its importance.

It's fine to have a cookout if the weather allows. It's perfectly okay to go to the beach or plant your garden. It is a long weekend and the first one after a long, hard winter, so it should be enjoyed. But, I ask you to take a little time out of your holiday festivities to go to a parade if it is possible. Go to the cemetery if you can and place a flower on the grave of a family member, even if you don't know who they are because they died long ago. And if you can't get away, if there are no parades in your area, if the cemetery is not a place you can get to for whatever reason, you can take a few moments on Monday to remember someone you love that is now gone. You can take a few moments out of your busy schedule to say a silent prayer or have a positive thought for the soldiers we have lost and the ones who are still in harms

You may be someone who feels that we are in the middle of a just war or you may, like myself, feel that this country had no valid reason to be in Iraq. It really doesn't matter, as long as we all feel that we should honor our fallen heroes and hope/pray that there will be very few more to

I know that this is supposed to be a humor column and most of the time it is, but the way I see it, some things are not very funny, but they are still worth writing about. Thank you for reading and have a wonderful Memorial Day weekend.

Friday evening, other CAP staff members en route to Greenville from Bangor and Waterville received notice from the Air Force Rescue Coordination Center that an emergency locator transponder (ELT) was detected emanating from an area about 20 miles south of Bangor.
